AMERICAN COLLEGE OF TRIAL LAWYERS SPRING MEETING
MARCH 3-6, 2016, GRAND WAILEA, MAUI, HAWAII

GREETINGS FROM THE PRESIDENT

DECEMBER 2015

Ellen Bain and I are delighted to invite you to join us for the 2016 Spring Meeting of the American College of Trial Lawyers at the beautiful Grand Wailea, A Waldorf Astoria Resort in Maui, from Thursday, March 3, through Sunday, March 6, 2016.

President-Elect Bartholomew J. Dalton has planned an impressive program of distinguished speakers addressing timely and interesting topics. We are pleased to offer a Professional Program for CLE credit on Thursday, March 3, in the afternoon. We hope you will make plans to come a day before the meeting begins to take full advantage of a true island paradise.

As always, College evening social events will provide an opportunity to greet treasured friends and make new ones in a relaxed aloha spirit. The traditional highlight of our meeting will be the Saturday night induction of new Fellows and black tie banquet, followed by dancing and the traditional "Sing Along."

Tours and unique activities offered on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday afternoons promise to provide opportunities to explore the tropical island of Maui and discover all that it has to offer, from the sandy beach to the lush foliage of Maui's Upcountry.

We anticipate that this meeting will sell out, and we encourage you to register early so that you may receive confirmation of your registration and the ability to book your room at the Grand Wailea. By registering online through the College's website at actl.com, you will receive your registration confirmation and hotel booking code immediately. You may also register by fax or mail using the registration form included with this brochure.

We look forward to seeing you on the "Valley Isle."

Sincerely,

Steve has been working in television for thirty years as a cinematographer, editor, and producer. Before starting his media career, he received a B.S. in Earth Science from Southern Illinois University where he also did an interdisciplinary archaeological research project on a rock shelter site he discovered. After several years as director of an environmental education program in Chicago and a field researcher for paleo-climate studies at the University of Wisconsin, Steve moved to Los Angeles where he initially worked in petroleum engineering before succumbing to the siren call of Hollywood. His media career has garnered an Emmy as well numerous other industry awards. Desiring to blend his scientific interests with filmmaking, Steve has been fortunate to work on a variety of adventure and science oriented programming around the world. Elkins became fascinated with the Honduran Mosquitia and its lost city legends while filming there in 1994. Reading about the advent of airborne lidar as a tool for unveiling archaeological ruins, he formed a company in 2012 (UTL: Under the Lidar) with colleagues to explore the Mosquitia jungle using lidar while producing a documentary about the process and results that happen to include the discovery of two "lost cities." In 2013, Steve and his UTL partner, Bill Benenson, were both selected as two of Foreign Policy Magazine's Leading Global Thinkers of the Year for their innovative approach to exploration. In addition, their project was the subject of a feature story in the May 2013 issue of The New Yorker titled, "The Eldorado Machine." This year, with Steve as project leader, they organized a multi-disciplinary scientific ground expedition to one of the sites discovered by lidar in 2012. The results have garnered world headlines including an article in the October 2015 issue of National Geographic ("Lure of the Lost City") and a recent episode of National Geographic Explorer ("Legend of the Monkey God").

It's All a Matter of Proportion: The 2015 Amendments to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure

The December 1, 2015, amendments to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure are designed to make the civil litigation process more streamlined and less expensive. The amendments address four interrelated areas: increased cooperation among counsel, more active judicial management, proportionality of discovery (as opposed to the “reasonably calculated” standard, which is gone), and remedies for the loss or destruction of electronically stored information. Our panel will address the background of these dramatic changes, review the ways in which they differ from their predecessors, and explain how they are expected to operate and what they are intended to achieve.

Two hours of general CLE credit will be offered.
